

Cite as: 10 TECH. L. REV., June 2013, at 213.

District Court Implement Case Flow Management System Responded to Properly and Speedy Trial —Centred on Taiwan Hsinchu District Court Criminal Pretrial Center

Jong-Yi Chiou^{*}

Abstract

This article attempts to jump off the traditional interpretation on the Law changed to the Law of empirical research to quantitative research and qualitative research, and use the Balanced Scorecard (BSC) to analyze the court the implementation of case flow management system in the financial, customers, internal processes and learning and growth the causal relationship of the four dimensions, try to construct a vision and strategy of the implementation of the new system, combined with the commencement of key performance indicators (KPI) through strategic map, to analyze the court “Criminal case flow Management” the effectiveness of the system, can achieve the various preset KPI. And results provided to the Judicial Yuan for the future extend into a system of reference. This article and hope that the introduction of a national and universal implementation in response to the public “properly with the speed of the trial” requirement (trust enhancement), and to create a reasonable judge trial, in order to create win-win.

^{*} Taiwan Hsinchu District Court Judge; The Director of the Association of Judges of R.O.C.; Ph. D. Institute of Technology Law, National Chiao Tung University.

Keywords: Case Flow Management, Proper and Speedy Trial, Due Process of Law, Empirical Study of Law, Qualitative Research, Quantitative Research